

Nurturing trust to help women thrive.

We build strong communities by working to end generational poverty—one woman at a time.

The issue

There are currently more than 50,000 women living in poverty in Austin. Most women are facing generational poverty, a cyclical form of poverty passed down through family lines due to systemic inequality.

This cycle can only be broken by disrupting the forces of inequality that reinforce it.

Saffron Women's Trust Foundation is working to break the cycle of generational poverty and act as a central point of contact for women in need. We work directly with organizations in the Austin metro area to provide women with the stability they need to survive and connect them to the resources that they and their children need to thrive.

How your donations help

*Our goal is to help women thrive long-term,
and your help makes it possible.*

We build trust-based partnerships that last for life. With your help we are able to help women meet not only their immediate needs of food, shelter, and healthcare, but also connect them with resources for education, employment, and mental and emotional health.

We need your help to break the cycle of generational poverty.

We believe that communities can be made stronger by saving one life at a time. We can only do that by presenting a strong, united force to fight poverty.

Sponsorship

Lead by example in the community your business calls home by helping fight poverty in Austin.

It's your corporate social responsibility to establish that you care about the community—and no one is more in need of that support than Saffron's women. Sponsors help Saffron host events, offer specific resources for Saffron women, or by offering ongoing financial support that enables us to continue working to serve the women of Austin.
